Social Media Marketing: Open an Account

To start using social media for marketing you will need to open an account for any of the platforms you choose. Facebook is optimized for the web, but also has a mobile app. The other platforms are optimized for mobile, but also have websites. To sign up on the web, follow the instructions listed below.

Mobile apps are available for these (and most) social media platforms at the Apple App Store, Google Play, and other vendors' app stores. Simply download the app and enter the requested details to set up your account and begin. We've listed four major platforms to get you started.
